BURNED TO DEATH.

Horrible Fate of an East Wheeling Woman Yesterday Morning.

MISS MARY JANE REDMANN BURNED

In the House of her Brother-in-Law, George Hibberd, on Fourteenth Street Near McColloch—The Substantial Brick House Practically Destroyed—The Exact Origin of the Flames Can Only be Conjectured.

Shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the brick residence of George Hibberd, the well known plumber, who lived on the north side of Fourteenth street, two doors west of McColloch. The exact origin of the flames is not known, but Mary Jane Redmann, a sister of Mrs. Hibberd's, lost her life in the burning building, and several others made narrow escapes.

The blaze started in the kitchen. Mrs. Hibberd was the only member of the family who was up at the time. The flames spread so rapidly that she had scarcely time to arouse the other members of the family and get them downstairs before the entire rear of the house was enveloped in fire.

She waked her three sons, who slept in the front room upstairs, her husband, who was in the middle room, and her sister, Miss Redmann, who slept in the rear room. One of the sons ran out and turned in a fire alarm from the nearest box. Mr. Hibberd seeing that his sister-in-law was in imminent danger, went to her room and got her out into the hall, but she was there appalled by the fire and refused to be stirred further. Mr. Hibberd escaped by a window, and the window of Miss Redmann's room was then broken open, but she remained in the hall and it was impossible for aid to reach her.

She was no doubt first smothered to death and then burned, as when found her body was charred beyond recognition.

The department responded to the alarm in good time, but the blaze had gained such headway that the house was practically gutted and the walls badly damaged before the fire was extinguished. The flames were so intensely hot that the stone window caps were melted and crumbled away.

The loss on the building will probably reach $3,000, partly covered by insurance. The house had been recently repaired and refitted with hard wood floors. Nothing was saved, so rapidly did the fire spread.

Mrs. Hibberd, when she rose, went to the kitchen and lighted the fire in the stove. She was attracted to the yard by a chicken which had caught its head in the fence, and after she released it she returned to the house. Just as she entered the kitchen again the fire burst up, seeming to fill the whole room at once. Whether there had been a leakage of gas or what caused the explosion can scarcely be conjectured.

Miss Redmann was 50 years of age and was highly respected by all who knew her. The coroner was notified of her death, and made an examination of the body at Bertch's undertaking rooms, where it was removed soon after the fire. Coroner Schultze took the testimony of one of the Hibberd boys, Al V. Hibberd, who was the only member of the family who had recovered sufficiently to give a connected account of the occurrence. He said, in substance:

"About 6 o'clock my mother went out into the yard. When she came back the fire flashed up the stairway; then mother called to me and I heard the lady scream, while I tried to rescue her, but I was driven back by the fire. The lady could not be gotten out for nearly an hour on account of the fire. Then the firemen took the body out. She was suffocated before she was burnt, because she was naturally short of breath, owing to her rheumatic condition. Her weight was about 230 pounds."

The coroner rendered a decision that death was due to suffocation by fire.

Women to Vote.

In Ohio, Clark's senate bill allowing women over twenty-one years of age to vote at school elections has passed and will become a law as soon as the senate shall have concurred in a house amendment slightly changing the phraseology of the bill. It will take effect from and after its passage. A separate ballot box is to be provided for women and all laws relating to the registration of voters shall apply to women upon whom the right to vote is thus conferred, but the names of such women may be placed on a separate list. Men who expect to run for the board of education will have to get on the good side of the women.

Successful Entertainment of Centre District School.

The closing exercises of the fifth term of the Centre school, Liberty district, taught by Miss Bird M. Curtis, of West Liberty, occurred on Friday at 11 o'clock. The patrons and friends began to assemble and after one hour of profitable and pleasant converse a bountiful dinner was served, of which all partook with relish and hearty enjoyment. Then the scholars entertained with recitations, speeches and dialogues, interspersed with songs by the teacher and scholars. The exercises were highly creditable. Miss Curtis has the reputation of being one of the best instructors in Liberty district and returns to her home with the best wishes of her scholars and the patrons of the district.

A NEW PATENT WHEEL.

The Invention of Wheeling Men—The Special Claims for It.

Mr. George P. Hobbs, the inventor of a new wheel of which mention was made in yesterday's INTELLIGENCER, writes that the patent on it was granted to George P. Hobbs and A. L. Edwards. He says also that the article patented is a steel wheel, such as are used on children's carriages, bicycles, etc. Instead of using special rolled iron and malleable castings and special machinery in its construction, this new wheel is made from sheet steel and wire stamped into shape by regular machinery, such as is used in stamping works. The wheel when finished has a much neater appearance, is stronger, weighs ten ounces less, and can be made for twenty-five per cent less than other wheels now on the market.

It is the purpose of the inventors to organize a company for the manufacture of this wheel and the sheet metal axle recently patented, trimmings for this line of goods and other inventions by Mr. Hobbs which will be patented in due time.

Propositions have been received from several other places looking to the starting of the new industry, but the inventor prefers to locate here if a company can be formed to take hold of his patents.

A Commission Firm.

The old quarters of the Wheeling Press Club in the Reilly block are now occupied by the Wheeling Commission Company, of Pittsburgh, who deal in stocks, bonds, grain, provisions and petroleum. The firm has a wire direct to their office, and the varying quotations on the various stocks are slated immediately from the New York and Chicago markets. This is something that has long been desired in Wheeling, and the manager, Mr. L. M. Drumbaugh, says that business at the new stand is all that could be desired.
